

To Whom it May Concern:

Recently, I received email from Government Codey, stating that our Do Not Call plan is in jeopardy of being overturned and made less stringent. I cannot stress enough my dismay at this development. It has been so pleasant to not receive these calls. Before the Do Not Call list we were receiving them on almost an hourly basis. I do not want these intrusions on my home life. I am a nurse who works night shift and was constantly being awakened by these calls. Because I have a small child in school, I cannot shut off the phone.

If I want to buy something, I will solicit the sellers! I don't need phone calls disrupting my private time -- especially trying to sell me siding or new windows, both of which I just replaced!

Please don't overturn this law. There are so many less intrusive ways that companies can make me aware of their products, other than disturbing my sleep and private time.

Thanks for your time,

Rachael Zink
